Agnew records made available

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Federal investigators are culling several years worth of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's personal financial records as part of a probe of alleged extortion and kickbacks among politicians and contractors in Maryland.

Copies of the Agnew records were picked up at the vice president's Washington office Friday by representatives of U.S. Atty. George Beall who is conducting the investigation.

Agnew voluntarily made the records available at Beall's request. Agnew also said he would submit to an interview by investigators, but Beall told newsmen the interview has not yet taken place. Presumably it will not until investigators have thoroughly examined the vice president's records.

In another development, sources close to the investigation said Friday that Justice Department officials were wrong when they said that Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson's briefing of Agnew on the allegations against him was common practice.

The Justice spokesmen had said all persons involved in federal probes have a right to such a briefing. But the other sources said the practice was highly irregular.

"The circumstances involved the number two man in the country," the sources said. "That's why it was done in this case. They don't go around telling people the names of witnesses against them and what these witnesses are saying. That comes in court during the trial."

Agnew volunteered last Tuesday to turn copies of his bank and tax records over to Beall's investigators. Beall had notified Agnew through the vice president's attorney early in the month that he was under investigation for possible violation of tax, extortion, bribery and conspiracy laws.

In making the records available, Agnew made it clear he was acting as a private citizen and not making any concessions about the availability of vice presidential documents.

"I do not acknowledge that you or any grand jury have any right to records of the vice president," Agnew said in his letter to Beall. "Nor do I acknowledge the propriety of any grand jury investigation of possible wrongdoing on the part of the vice president so long as he occupies that office."

Man charged with wife's death

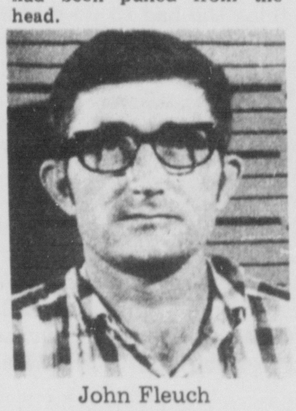

POPLAR BLUFF — John Bernard Fleuch, 30, of Poplar Bluff was to be arraigned today in Butler County Magistrate Court on charges of first degree murder in connection with the death of his wife.

Fluech was charged Friday after the body of his pregnant wife, Pat, 21, was found Thursday in about nine inches of water in the couple's bathtub. Although her body was bruised and cut, an autopsy report indicated death was by drowning.

The couple had been married only four months.

Fleuch summoned an ambulance shortly after 5 p.m. Thursday and told the driver that he had found his wife dead in the bathtub when he came home from work.

The body was lying face up in nine inches of water and had been battered. There was also evidence that hair had been pulled from the head.

John Fleuch

During a lie detector test, Fleuch admitted arguing with his wife about an abortion she allegedly said she wanted, police said.

Fluech reportedly said the argument began early Thursday morning and ended in the bathroom when Mrs. Fleuch fell and hit her head very hard, knocking her out. Fluech admitted putting her body in the bathtub, straightening out the house and going to work.

The autopsy, which ruled the cause of death as drowning, was performed at Doctors Hospital.

Fleuch is employed as a bridge crew carpenter by Missouri Pacific Railroad.

Guitar stolen, car stripped

A guitar was reported stolen at Miner Baptist Church, and a car was stripped at a used car lot in Miner, town marshal Andy Freeman said today.

A guitar, valued at $400, was taken sometime Friday night from the church building on Route H. Freeman said the method of entry was unknown.

Two tires and two mag wheels, valued at about $250, were stripped from the rear of a used car at the Martindale used car lot on Highway 62 East. The theft occurred between 2 and 6 a.m. today.

Sewing machine , mower stolen

Solomon Steward, 100 Dixie, told police that someone entered his house between 11 a.m. and 5:45 p.m. Friday and stole his wife's sewing machine.

Walter Winfield, 838 Agnes, reported the theft of a lawn mower from his back yard. The theft occurred sometime between last Saturday and Friday. The lawn mower was valued at $150.

Senior citizens keeping busy

Heritage House, 305 Cresap, is a busy place during the week as senior citizens work on craft projects or have private parties in the meeting room. In top photo, senior citizens gather to help with the Bootheel Toy Lending Library. Sanding blocks, which will eventually become nine different toys to teach preschoolers size, shape and color, are from left, Stella Parson, Ella Jordan, Jewel Davis, Fred Sullivan, Minnie Sutton and Anna Stanley of Sikeston. The library will be a service of the University of Missouri Extension Division. In photo at left, Ken Hunt of Benton, cuts blocks to be sanded by the group. M.U. drops Head Start

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Southeast Missouri State University Board of Regents has authorized the university to apply for federal funds to take over the operation of the Head Start Program operated by the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation.

The University of Missouri, which has been the administrator of the program, will bow out at the end of 1973.

SeMo State will apply for a federal grant of $1.1 million to continue the program in 1974.

The action has been approved by the DAEOC Head Start committee.

About 1,300 disadvantaged children between the ages of 3 and 5 years old from Scott, Stoddard, Mississippi, New Madrid, Dunklin, and Pemiscot counties will be served.

The university is also applying for a $295,398 federal grant to finance a proposed high school equivalency program. If the grant is forthcoming about 50 college aged individuals will be admitted to the program.

They will live on campus and receive intensive instruction in reading, English, grammar, natural science, mathematics and social science.

The aim of the program is to provide the students with the equivalent of a high school education and enable them to get a job with advancement opportunities, enter on- the- job training programs, or enroll for post-secondary education.

No university funds will be used for either program. If the federal grants are not awarded, the program will not materialize.

The board of regents also authorized the sale of $3 million in revenue bonds to finance the construction of a new student union building on the campus.

Three persons were injured in three traffic accidents Friday and early today on area roads and highways, according to the highway patrol.

Robert Kaiser, 16, of Bernie received an injury to his left hand at 3 p.m. Friday on a gravel road three miles north of Bernie when he tried to dodge a dog, lost control of his car, ran off the road and overturned, striking a telephone pole.

As a taxpayer you'll be interested to know, reports the Oregon Voter Digest, that the federal government now has 1400 advisory commissions and boards. They cost us $25,215,882 in 1972. A truly economy minded Administration and Congress should be able to eliminate a lot of this fat.

The National Association of Manufacturers takes a dim view of misuse of federal food stamps, as witness one of their editorials: "When the food stamp program was enacted by Congress in 1964 its purpose was to raise the level of nutrition among low- income households. Now the soaring use of welfare assistance by strikers, particularly food stamps, constitutes a major threat to effective collective bargaining. It can contribute to longer strikes, higher settlements, and a continuation of inflation. Industry leaders estimate the cost of giving welfare assistance to strikers will escalate to $329 million annually. It is time for Congress to re-define the eligiblity of receivers of food stamps -- and to stop the abusive distortion of the welfare assistance program. Reserve stamps for the truly needy, not for U. S. Treasury strike assistance."

We may be in danger of running out of a number of things, but land isn't one of them.

There are more than two billion acres of land in the United States, most of it agricultural. Agriculture will continue to be the dominant use of the land, and is expected to account for more than half of the total area in the year 2000.

According to Land Use Digest, citing a study by the Economic Research Service, the way the land is used has remained pretty much the same since 1950: Cropland takes about a fifth of the land, grassland and pasture and range about a fourth, forestland about an eighth and wasteland another eighth. Actually, we need less land for food and fiber because of greatly increased agricultural productivity.

By the end of the century, some 222 million acres, or 10 per cent of the nation's total acreage is expected to be in nonagricultural use. While urban areas have doubled in population since 1950, they still occupy only 1.5 per cent of total land area.

In these days of discussion of "job satisfaction" which some critics contend there is increasing discontent due to lack of motivation, we believe that everyone's job helps regardless of its category and rank.

Christopher News Notes points out that there is hardly any occupation that does not in some way promote human betterment. Someone, somewhere, benefits by a task competently performed. This is a reality that too often we forget to our own peril -- as individuals and as a nation.

If a craftsman doesn't bother to make a proper electrical connection, or to fix a leaky pipe, how many people suffer needless trouble?

If a nurse's aid or hospital orderly neglects to attend a sick person's needs, how seriously is a human life affected?

If a delivery boy or messenger fails to complete his job on time, how much costly delay results?

If an auto mechanic does a sloppy piece of work on a car or bus, how many others are endangered?

If a switchboard operator or sales person is discourteous, how many customers are offended or how much business is lost?

If productivity goes down while prices and wages go up, how many citizens are penalized by the resulting inflation?

What we are trying to say is that service to others on our jobs bring satisfaction -- and a sense of achievement.

THE PRESIDENT'S FAILURE

To the extent that President Nixon's televised address last night was an effort to begin with the process of restoring confidence in his Administration, the presentation was a failure. Mr. Nixon's protestations of innocence in the Watergate scandal cannot be taken seriously without proof, and he again refused to offer proof in the form of secretely recorded conversations with his associates.

Despite ample opportunity to prepare his defense, Mr. Nixon seems unable to confront the fact that it is his own credibility that is at stake. The public can be expected to look with suspicion on the word of a man who, it has recently been disclosed, assured the nation he was respecting the neutrality of Cambodia when in fact he had been bombing that country for 14 months.

Mr. Nixon again fell back on his stock excuse for withholding the tapes from the Senate investigating committee, Special Prosecutor Cox and the public. He invoked "executive privilege", and said that if he handed over the tapes he could never again expect to have the confidential exchanges with colleagues and distinguished visitors needed to conduct the affairs of state.

In fact, such confidentiality was destroyed when it was revealed that the President has been secretly taping his White House conversations. Knowing this, no visitor in his right mind would ever voice a confidence to the Chief Executive unless inquiry had convinced him his words were not being recorded. If this hampers Mr. Nixon in his work, it is his own fault. He has caused the damage and it cannot be repaired.

The extent of Mr. Nixon's involvement in the Watergate and associated scandals is not known, and the public will be led to suspect the worst unless and until the President submits to a thorough cross-examination on the facts before some public forum. He cannot clear the air by making sanctimonious statements or attempting to discredit his critics, as he seems bent on doing.

Perhaps the real thrust of the President's talk was his effort to turn off the Senate investigation, which he said had moved in the direction of trying to implicate him. This is not so. Senator Ervin and his colleagues have been seeking the truth, which is the task they were elected to perform. When Mr. Nixon asserts that he wants to get on with the job he was elected to do, he cannot at the same time condemn Congress for doing its job.

And his implication that Congress has become so mired in Watergate that it is unable to legislate is likewise erroneous. As television viewers know, the investigating Senators took frequent breaks to vote on legislation. So far as anyone knows, no legislative matters have been held up by Watergate.

It is not Congress but the President who is paralyzed, and the tasks he lists as waiting to be accomplished are his tasks that cannot effectively be performed because the people have lost faith in his Administration. Mr. Nixon must restore that faith. That is his pre-eminent challenge.

If he is indeed blameless, there are adequate ways in which he can demonstrate his innocence to the satisfaction of the public. If he is not, he should give serious thought to resigning, so that someone else can do the job a President is elected to do.

THE LESSON OF BASLER

The president of a Little Rock, Ark., manufacturing firm recently came to Charleston on a "searching" trip. He was looking for a location in the Bootheel where he could establish a branch factory.

He came into town on his own, did a little poking around, talked briefly with city officials, and then left.

When Chamber of Commerce representatives called him the next week they were told "I eliminated your town immediately."

Asked to elaborate, the manufacturer laid it on the line:

"The fact that you have a company that has been closed for over a year by a strike means you have a very bad labor problem.

"The reason we were looking for another location is that we cannot find in Little Rock enough people who want to work.

"Any manufacturing company would avoid Charleston like the plague, with your history of labor problems.

"There are thousands of towns in the Midwest which do not have such a history, and those are the towns that are going to attract industry. You people will never get anywhere until you have erased this situation and have built up a new history of productive labor relations."

This factory would have employed 150 persons.

It is one of about 30 prospects over the past year and a half that have looked at Charleston and left immediately, because of the closing of the Basler Electric Company factory here.

The Basler Electric strike must end — one way or the other.

Until the strike is over, we will have no chance at all of attracting new industry, and without additional jobs our community will wither up and die.

If the working people of Mississippi County want the Chambers of Commerce of Charleston and East Prairie to bring more new jobs into the area, the workers must be willing to help create an inviting climate.

The Basler strike has taught us, if nothing else, how seriously the owners of prospective new industries view a town's labor difficulties. The Chamber of Commerce has learned this lesson too well. We hope our community's working people will also profit from the lesson, and unite with the Chamber to create a business climate in which several additional factories can be brought to the Mississippi County area.

Without labor's support, the Chambers of Commerce are wasting their time in seeking new jobs, and the community has wasted its money in building an industrial park and airport.

One way of ending the strike and, hopefully, of putting Charleston back in the market for new industry, will present itself on August 10, when the Basler employees vote on decertification of the Steelworkers Union.

We hope and pray the employees will vote to oust the union and return to their jobs, in their own interest and in the interest of the entire community.

SPURS TO INVESTMENT SEEN 'NOT EXCESSIVE'

The incentives to investment made available by Congress, said Alexander Scott, Vice President and Comptroller, American Telephone and Telegraph Company, have "not been excessive."

The incentives have roughly offset amounts by which allowances for depreciation in the nation's industrial plant under existing tax laws have been "inadequate" to provide for depreciation in terms of real value, he told attendees at Tax Foundation's 24th National Tax Conference.

If, he said, in future, the historical cost basis of depreciation is to be retained, Congress should, as a minimum, continue to provide benefits which offset in full the amounts by which depreciation allowances are inadquate. Such benefits, he added, should remain in effect even when government is "cooling" the economy.

Elaborating earlier on his point that historical costs do not provide for full recovery in an inflationary economy, Mr. Stott noted that even with a "modest" 3 per cent inflation rate annually, at the end of ten years, recovery of a $1 million original investment under the straight- line method, will produce only about $853,000 in terms of the purchasing power of the initial investment.

Blacks' New Champion: Justice Dept. Suing Cities, States, Everywhere For Jobs For All Minorities and Women

WASHINGTON--- An embattled U. S. Dept. of Justice wants women on the street, in uniform, be it of the police, firefighters, sanitation workers, inspectors, enforcers of all kinds--- wherever it's been a man's world in the public employ.

It also wants a great many more blacks, Puerto Ricans and persons with Spanish extraction names in the same public employ.

This is the Department's newest campaign under its still-new Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson. The signal has been given to sue the public sector; go into court to rip open the civil services which "man" the public agencies of states, counties and municipalities.

In the words of one high official "the Department, especially the Civil Rights Division, under Stanley Pottinger, is set to sue public employers, meaning cities, counties and states right across the nation."

This is a vast field. There are some 14 million public sector employes.

This is an emotional field. Just talk to police, firefighters, civil service people who are disturbed by what they call the "quota" system. There is, for example, the angry Richard Vizzini, president of the New York Uniformed Firefighters Assn. (AFL- CIO) whose union is suing in the federal courts to set aside a judicial stipulation that the big city must hire one minority firefighter for every three whites.

The national firefighters union, led by Howie McClennan, however, has a U. S. Labor Dept. grant to finance the searching out and training of black youths as firefighters. This is handled by the local unions but is supervised by McClennan's national office here under a five- man staff.

The Justice Dept.'s newest campaign had gone virtually unnoticed until it brought its first court suits against police departments--- those of Chicago and Buffalo--- to force the hiring of more blacks, other minorities and women. And to see that all--- men and women--- are assigned to jobs and patrols, etc., on an equal basis.

The Justice Dept. got its power to sue cities and states, and perhaps even federal government agencies, when the 1964 Civil Rights Law (Section 7) was amended on March 24, 1972. This action gave "Justice" the ability to shift from monitoring the private sector to policing the public sector. This puts the Department right on every citizen's doorstep. Thus this is the beginning of a sweeping national story.

Last year, the Department began the first of its 12 public sector suits with action against Montgomery, Ala., to move it to open all of its municipal agencies. This was settled with a consent decree. More minorities were hired by the city.

Since then the fire departments of Los Angeles, Chicago, Dallas and Boston were sued. Also the school systems of Baltimore County, St. Louis (Mo.) County and Kansas City, Kan.

Now four more big city police departments are being studied by the Civil Rights Division. Presumably, these will be sued also as the Department moves across country.

Here, it should be reported that the police and fire departments, the vast network of school systems and other public services should not feel discriminated against. Somewhere deep in the government the word is to enforce the civil rights law--- get black and other minority workers, including women, into the establishment. The Justice Dept., Labor Dept. and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission have cracked down truly hard on some of the biggest construction unions and their joint apprenticeship committees.

There's no doubt a quota system of minority hiring is being woven with the toughest legal strands. Federal officials wince at the word "quotas." They call them "goals." But quotas it is in definitive percentages--- and this goes for women as well as black and Spanish- surnamed workers.

It's a virtual revival of the old "Philadelphia Plan" which back in 1969 set specific black quotas for union membership in the top wage earning building and construction unions in Mayor Rizzo's City of Brotherly Love.

The new drive in the public sector has the same goals--- or quotas. These are outlined in the lawsuits or in the consequent discussions and voluntary settlements.

The suits against the Chicago and Buffalo police forces are prelude. Among other things, they seek to force the police departments to conduct recruitment programs for blacks, Spanish- surnamed persons and women. Also to "adopt and implement goals of hiring qualified applicants in sufficient numbers to overcome the effects of past discrimination."

This is a drastic demand, indeed, for it seeks an unprecedented social retroactivity in this public sector.

And talking about retroactivity, the Justice Dept. also demands that the cities "compensate any black, Spanish- surnamed person or woman who has been unlawfully denied employment."

It would be surprising if this did not bring thousands of appeals for redress, not only in Chicago and Buffalo, but in other cities before any court decisions are handed down.

Enormous sums are involved.

There also could be a reshifting of jobs if seniority becomes restrictive to the day the black, Puerto Rican or Spanish- surnamed man or woman applied for a civil service job and allegedly was turned away for reasons of color, nationality or sex. The Justice Dept. is going further than the mere right of minorities or women to all public jobs. The Justice Dept. demands equal assignments--- even if it means putting a holstered gun on a woman and sending her out on public patrol.

Your city hall is at the heart of this story.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
The Men Who Live Off The French Connection
By Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON-- The aristocrats of the world heroin trade live millionaires' lives in Europe with telephone equipped Mercedes automobiles and friends in cabinet rooms and mayors' mansions.

The behind- the- scenes activities of these shadowy criminals who manufacture heroin and ship it to the United States are described in detail in a classified Justice Department document. We have obtained a copy of the Department's "French Drug Trafficking Hierarchy" and have stricken the names of the agents and the code numbers of the informers to preserve their anonymity.

Unlike the pathetic and often dangerous addicts who roam U. S. streets, the merchants who supply their demands confine their own intake to American whiskey and London gin.

"There is no single Big Boss of French drug trafficking," the Justice narcotics report asserts. "Rather, as in the case of most legitimate as well as illegal undertakings, small common interest groups are the building blocks of the business.

RAPID GAIN

"On one hand, there are groups with access to morphine base (the semi- finished heroin) laboratory facilities and chemists. Then there are other individuals or groups with the capital to invest for rapid, maximum gain."

The narcotics trade to the United States is presently so lucrative that these financiers, after backing only 10 shipments, can "retire" and then lend out their money to others at "exorbitant interest rates for use in drug or other illicit operations."

The traffickers meet with the financiers "through criminal associations at such places as the 'Trois Canards' (or) Cafe Galvani in Paris..., the Royal Bus, a bar in Madrid..., Ranch Kentucky, a Marseilles area underworld meeting place (and) the Cravache Bar near the Gagnes race track."

There, despite rings of thug-like protectors, they are under the watchful eyes of French and U. S. "narcs" and informers, and electronic surveillance devices that would make a Waterbugger rattle his bars with jealousy. The "French Connection- style" agents have dogged the traffickers' hand- made shoe prints and produced this roster of the men who make America's drug habit:

'MYSTERIOUS GEORGES'

-- Although some top traffickers are in custody and others are shifting to West Germany, the document identifies a "mysterious Georges" of France as heroin's prime mover. The muscular 50- year- old has been spotted at Paris's posh Plaza Athence hotel and has been seen parked in his phone- equipped tan Mercedes 300 SL before rich, discreet Parisian restaurants.

-- Just beneath him the American agents rank a man known only as "Tonton (uncle) Robert," a Corsican with close friendships in the Marseilles mayor's office. At "Uncle Robert's" level, are two others-- Pierre "Marseilles Pierrot" Roggiero, a hard-bitten 34- year- old; and Henri Ronesio, who slips into gun running when the drug trade is bearish.

-- Before brillaint work by American customs and narcotics agents sent him into disgrace, Andrew Hirsch, a 55- year- old Swiss, was one of the most ingenious shippers to the United States. He tried to smuggle in a giant cache packed in Spanish paella-- rice and fish-- cans, but lost both his heroin and his liberty.

A 'COMER'

A narcotics "comer," according to the report, is Jacques "Strasbourg Jack" Engelhardt, a pal of "Mysterious Georges." He came to the top through his part in a $66 million shipment.

-- The Gentleman Jim of the narcotics world, who counts U. S. labor leaders and European ministers and heads of state among his friends, is Maurice Castellani. He is as much at home in New York as in Paris.

Besides these kingpins, there are dozens of other colorful smugglers listed, ranging from printers, to drivers to "Claude Mareau," a mechanic famed for fitting a Lancia car with a hidden compartment in which 160 pounds of pure heroin were smuggled into the United States.

Rich or poor, the Justice Department document casts a cold, businesslike eye on them all. "In essence," concludes the study, "traffickers are like individuals with a saleable commodity." They "seek an association with other individuals who can provide services for a mutual profit."

PORK CHOP: The Humane Society has chastized the government for using rabbits and a "Hormet Miniature Pig weighing 100 pounds" to test wrist slingshots in the Gainesville Eight trial of Vietnam vets.

The government charges the vets planned to use the slingshots to disrupt the 1972 GOP convention. In tests at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology aimed at showing the dangers of the slings, various missiles ruptured a shaved rabbit's stomach wall and penetrated a rabbit's body, but only bruised the doughty pig. The finding: the slings weren't likely to hurt a fully clothed adult unless the missile hit him in the eye,• open mouth, ear canal or jugular vein.

Without choosing sides in the trial, the Humane Society, in an angry letter to the Army, said that since the government already knew the slings would "dent pinewood boards...We express our complete disapproval" of using the pig and rabbits for tests.

The Army insisted to us that the animals were anaesthetized, were painlessly killed after the tests and that "unfortunately there is no substitute for living tissue" in such tests.

NEW MADRID— New Madrid County recorded its 14th traffic fatality in 17 days Friday when John Brentnell Robinson, 55, of Salt Lake City, Utah, was killed at 6:45 a.m. in an accident on Interstate 55 five miles south of New Madrid at the entrance to a rest area.

Stolen tractor recovered

BERNIE— A $12,000 farm tractor which was stolen last Sept. 21 from the Earl Wright farm at Holcomb Route One has been recovered, law enforcement officials in Dunklin and Stoddard counties announced yesterday afternoon.

Dunklin County Deputy Sheriff Bob McDonald, along with the Missouri Highway Patrol and members of the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department, recovered the stolen tractor on a farm eight miles northwest of Bernie Wednesday afternoon. The tractor was one of several stolen in Southeast Missouri last fall.

Deputy McDonald said the two men who allegedly stole the tractor are already serving time in the state penitentiary on felonious stealing charges. He said an investigation is continuing and a third person may be implicated.

The farmer on whose land the tractor was found was not charged since he apparently purchased the tractor not knowing it had been stolen, authorities noted. Stoddard officials are holding the tractor until it can be claimed by Wright.

Ann Landers

Toothpick controversy nets plenty of letters

Dear Ann Landers: I use your column as a daily handbook to teach my teenagers not only moral precepts but good manners. Last week you failed badly.

In a recent column a woman asked, "Am I mistaken, or is it bad manners to use a toothpick at the dinner table?" You replied, "The gentleman should have excused himself."

My daughter, age 13, that very same night, proceeded to pick her teeth at the table. I asked where she learned that stunt. Her reply was, "I said 'excuse me.' According to Ann Landers it is all right to pick your teeth at the table if you excuse yourself."

I don't know where you were reared, Ann, but nowhere in THIS area is it considered proper to use a toothpick at the table. Are you on vacation and is someone else writing your column? Please explain. ---Stamford, Conn.

Dear Stam: When I go on vacation the work is done before I leave. Every word that appears under my byline is written by me.

And now about toothpick: Nearly 300 people wrote with the same complaint. Ninety per cent of the letters came from Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maine and Rhode Island. With all those fine schools out East, how come you people can't read?

I said, "It is indeed poor manners to use a toothpick at the table. The man should have excused himself."

I did NOT mean the man should have said "excuse me" and gone ahead and used the toothpick at the table. I meant the man should have said, "Excuse me," and then LEFT the table and taken the toothpick to the men's room. Got it?

Dear Ann Landers: I lost my husband a year ago. He was a wonderful person and although I put up a brave front I still miss him very much and think about him constantly.

Several people have commented on the fact that I am still wearing my wedding ring. I have been told to remove it since I am no longer a married woman. I can't bring myself to do it. It has been a part of me for so many years. What do you say? ---Boise.

Dear B.: If you want to wear it, continue to do so. Some widows switch their wedding bands to the other hand, which seems more sensible than putting it in a drawer.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 24-year- old ex-high school basketball player. The letter from the "cage cat" who urged parents to take time out to go watch their kids engage in sports brought back some memories.

My parents wanted to come to the games to cheer me on but I asked them not to. I thought I wouldn't play as well because they were in the stands. So they never saw me play until my last game as a senior. I played a great game (21 points, 12 rebounds) and after it was over I felt very good about it and could see the happiness in their faces.

I realize now that my parents missed seeing a wonderful part of their son's life as he grew to be a man. And I missed a lot of pleasure myself. --- A Personal Foul.

Dear P.F.: Thanks for being big enough to admit you were wrong. Perhaps some other cage cat will learn from your mistake.

Cards hold lead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The San Diego Padres, burdened with the National League's worst record, are looking forward to spoilers' roles during baseball's final six weeks.

"I think we've already had something to say about who's going to win," said Manager Don Zimmer, whose Padres trimmed the faltering St. Louis Cardinals, 4-2 in 13 innings Friday night.

"We beat the Chicago Cubs four out of six games and sent them into a tailspin," Zimmer noted.

"We went up to Los Angeles and beat the Dodgers three in a row awhile back. We've beaten Pittsburgh a few times and we just finished beating Montreal two of three."

Zimmer's Padres, outsteadying a faulty Cardinals defense, tacked a 10th defeat in 11 games on St. Louis via an error and ailing Mate Colbert's triple.

Dave Roberts, who had one of San Diego's 10 hits, led off the 13th with a hard shot at shortstop Mike Tyson, who fielded the ball cleanly but threw in the dirt.

Up stepped the powerful Colbert, who had been hitless, and Diego Segui's next delivery was laced to the wall in right-center, scoring Roberts.

Segui walked Clarence Gaston, the next hitter, and retired Fred Kendall on a groundball before Derrel Thomas' infield roller scored Colbert with an insurance run.

"He just hasn't hit the home runs that you'd expect him to," Zimmer said of Colbert, whose run batted in was his 58th.

Still nursing a sore hand incurred when hit by a pitch before the All-Star break, the 6foot-2, 210-pound Colbert was 0for-5 and had struck out once.

"I wasn't going to right field with the pitch," he said of the triple. "I was just trying to make good contact and I did."

Both Padre runs in the 13th were unearned, as was a San Diego score in the second inning which followed the first of four St. Louis errors.

San Diego moved in front, 20, on singles by Kendall and Thomas followed by Rich Morales' sacrifice fly in the fifth, but Mike Tyson tripled and singled home St. Louis runs in the seventh and ninth.

Despite the loss, their eighth in nine games during a current home stand, the Cards remained three games on top in the NL East.

"We're supposed to be able to execute better than that," said Cards Manager Red Schoendienst, shaking his head. "I just wish some of those mistakes had been theirs instead of ours."

Waterfowl season set

JEFFERSON CITY — The Conservation Commission has set a more liberal Canada goose season and adopted for the first time a point system on ducks. Both seasons open Nov. 1.

The point system, used in several other states, places a premium on a hunter's ability to tell both species and sex of ducks. A hunter will be allowed 100 points. Different species and sexes will count varying point totals.

As long as a hunter has less than 100 points in his bag, he can take ducks of any sex or species until a duck he has bagged takes him to or over 100 points.

The duck season will open Nov. 1 and run 45 days. Canvasback and redhead ducks of either sex will be worth 100 points, meaning that a hunter who shoots one of either species is through for the day. However, hunting for canvasbacks and redheads is closed in St. Charles County.

Female mallards, wood ducks and hooded mergansers are worth 90 points. Blue and green winged teal, scaup, widgeon, gadwall, shoveller and mergansers other than hooded mergansers are 15 point ducks. All other species and sexes are 25 points, including drake mallards, probably the most sought-after duck in Missouri.

"We realize this could be confusing to hunters, especially since it's a first-time regulation," says Mike Milonski, Game Division chief for the Department of Conservation. "We'd encourage any hunter who is unsure about the regulation to write us for information."

Coots, not included in the point system, will have a daily bag limit of 15 and possession limit of 30. Shooting hours on waterfowl are from sunrise to sunset, a change from the half- hour before sunrise of the past. Obviously, hunters must have better visibility to identify point- carrying ducks.

The blue and snow goose season opens Nov. 1 and will run for 70 days. Daily limit is five with five in possession.

The Canada goose quota in the Swan Lake zone will be 17,500 (or 70 days, whichever comes forst). This is the first increase in the Swan Lake quota in four seasons. The season will open Nov. 1.

A 1969 nesting bust cut heavily into the eastern prairie flock which migrates through Swan Lake. Then, moves by the Mississippi Flyway states to compensate for increased hunting pressure north of Missouri resulted in restricted bag limits.

As a result of the lean seasons and increased production, the flock has built to a level where the Flyway members feel a more liberal season is justified.

The daily limit in the Swan Lake zone will be one Canada or two white- fronted or one each daily, with two in possession.

In the southeast zone, the season will run Dec. 1 through Jan. 20, with a daily limit of two Canadas or two white- fronted geese or one each, with two in possession.

In the rest of the state, the season will open Nov. 1 for 40 days, with one Canada or two white- fronted or one each daily, with two in possession. The total daily bag limit of geese, including all species, is five.

The boundaries of the Southeast Zone (also called Lower Mississippi Zone) will be slightly revised this year to conform with the recently completed I-55 Highway System. The Zone will be east of Interstate 55 and south of Crystal City.

Almost every report of duck production from the pothole country of the northern United States and southern Canada has been poor because of dry conditions.

Kelso, Oran ASA winners

Kelso scored four runs on three hits and two errors to defeat the Cape Jets in a seventh inning rally, 7- 6. Benton outhit Oran but was on the losing end of the score, 5- 1 Friday night in the Amateur Softball Association.

Cape stepped out to a 2- 1 first inning lead and added two runs to it in the second. Kelso started to fight back and earned single runs in the third and fourth to come within one of the Jets. Cape picked up another two runs in the sixth but their attempts to hold Kelso failed and a rally saved the game for Kelso to remain alive in the tourney. Ken Russell was the winning pitcher in relief of Tom Russell. Wayne Smith suffered the loss. Charlie Schwartz was the power for Kelso hitting a home run to lead in that department. Doubles were contributed by Norman Estner and Tom Reinagel. A triple by Ronnie LaGrande and double by Kent Cargle were the Jets extra base hits.

A one run in the seventh inning for Benton had no pulling effect on Oran's lead. Oran picked up the first score of the game in the fourth when they slipped on run across the plate. It was followed by another run in the fifth and three in the sixth to give the Oran team their final score and another step closer to the championship. Don Robert fanned 17 batters on his way to the win. Jim and Brad Emerson teamed up for five of Benton's eight hits. Don Metz hit a round- tripper along with two by Terry Mobley. Mobley had his first one in the fifth and followed it with one in the sixth with one man on to earn three RBI's. Ray Scherer was the losing pitcher.

Dawson seeks title

JEFFERSON CITY--- Five Southeast Missouri golfers will be among the field of 199 entrants of the Missouri State Amateur Golf tournament that will get underway Tuesday at the Jefferson City Country Club.

Tom Dawson of Sikeston, Luther Godwin of Poplar Bluff and Charles Weber, Larry McKinney and Jerry Estes of Cape Girardeau will be out to unseat defending champion Don Bliss of St. Louis.

Tuesday's low 100 scorers and ties will qualify for the second 18- hole qualifying round Wednesday. The field will then be cut to 32, including Bliss, and match play will begin Thursday with morning and afternoon rounds.

Another double round Friday will produce the two finalists, who will meet in a 36 hole match Aug. 25.

Sikeston, Bertrand Champs at Charleston

CHARLESTON--- Sikeston's Musial League Aces and Bertrand walked off with the top honors Friday night at the conclusion of the Little League invitational baseball tournaments.

Mississippi County sheriff, W. J. "Pedro" Simmons, presented the first place trophies to Sikeston for their 11- 0 win over East Praire and Bertrand for their 2- 0 victory over Parma. Simmons also presented the third and fourth place awards as well as the most valuable player prize and gave out trophies to Charleston city league champs to conclude the 1973 summer baseball program.

Despite the combined no-hit pitching effort of Parma's Rodney Ledbetter and Jeff Berry, Bertrand took advantage of two first inning mistakes to score the games only runs which stood up against the generally strong hitting Parma club. Bertrand's defense thwarted three Parma threats, the last coming in the sixth inning when two men reached base before any outs were recorded. Bertrand's defense tightened and held Parma at bay. East Prairie won third with a 9- 3 win over the Sikeston National League Aces.

Sikeston's pitching shutout East Prairie in the 9-10 year old championship bout, 11- 0. Charleston won third with a 15- 5 win over Richland.

The case of the marvelous offer

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Mrs. Dingdong was a housewife without a house. And she ordered her husband to go out and get her one. The first one he found, while it was a beauty, belonged to an absentee owner. Consequently, Mr. Dingdong got out his pen and paper and mailed the owner an offer to buy it.

When the owner of the house received the offer, he was so thoroughly over- whelmed by Mr. Dingdong's generosity that he mailed back an immediate acceptance. Before it was delivered, however, Mr. Dingdong reviewed his offer and he too became overwhelmed by his generosity and raced to the nearest telephone to withdraw it.

"Sorry, old friend," responded the owner, "But it's too late to do that. I received your marvelous offer and I've already mailed you my acceptence."

"Maybe you did," answered Mr. Dingdong, "but I didn't get it yet. So, as far as I'm concerned, I can cancel it. While it may have been a marvelous offer, it was stupid and I can't be bound by it."

In due course, the owner of the house took Mr. Dingdong to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Mr. Dingdong to cancel his marvelous offer?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! the judge held that while an offer may be canceled at any time before it is accepted, an offer made by mail is generally deemed to have been accepted when the acceptance is mailed and not when it is received. Consequently, Mr. Dingdong, was bound by his marvelous offer.

Cattle inventory ranks Mo. fifth

COLUMBIA — The Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service has announced that cattle and calves on Missouri farms on July 1 totaled 6.2 million. The United States inventory on July 1 numbered 130,655,000 with Missouri ranking fifth. This is the first mid- year estimate to be made for total cattle inventory.

Cows and heifers that have calved on Missouri farms reached a record 2.7 million head. This is eight per cent above theprevious high a year earlier and ranks Missouri second only to Texas in all cow inventory.

The increase resulted from a larger number of beef cows which jumped 10 per cent to 2,383,000 head. Partially offsetting was a drop in dairy cows, down two per cent to 317,000. Heifers over 500 pounds for beef cow replacement totaled 370,000 and dairy cow replacements numbered 70,000.

As of July 1, all cow inventory in the United States totaled 53,788,000 head, up four per cent from a year ago with beef cows up six per cent to 42,363,000 head and milk cows down two per cent to 11,425,000.

Missouri cattlement are expecting a record calf crop of 2,565,000 during 1973. This is eight per cent above the previous high of 2,375,000 in 1972 and keeps Missouri the second largest calf- producing state. The 1973 calf crop for the United States is expected to total 50 million, four per cent more than the 47,889,000 produced in 1972.

Termites attack seven out of ten homes in the south, five out of ten in the midwest and at least two out of ten in the northernmost states.

PORTAGEVILLE — Circulation features anticipated by the National Weather Service long range prediction group place the Missouri Bootheel within patterns of below normal temperature average and above normal rainfall for the 30- day period ending in mid- September.

High pressure drifting into the middle of the nation from the west and north should account for periods in which both temperature and humidity are less oppressive than usual for this time of year. Conditions encountered over the Bootheel during the first week of August represent a model of what we might expect. Daytime readings peaked in the low 80s and the mercury dipped into the upper 50s several nights.

A more frequent occurrence of showers may also contribute to diminished daytime heat during the period. Showers and thunderstorms accompanying and preceding cool fronts are likely to deliver much of our rain. We can look for some of these to be slow movers, taking a day or more to clear out of range of Southeast Missouri. Indications that Gulf moisture may become more readily available enter into the potential for an increase in both the frequency of occurrence and the yield of moisture.

This trend is less likely to have an impact upon corn harvest this year, compared with the usual season. First, becaue of the limited acreage, and secondly, due to the late planting which will probably place harvest well into September. Trends outlined in the outlook for September will be more meaningful in that respect.

Sorghum midge was apparently not presenting a serious control problem as of mid- August, although birds were reported to be concentrating in several fields. The trend for mild and wet conditions should alert farmers to check thoroughly for build-ups of bollworm in cotton and soybeans during this period. This predator, identified as corn earworm in soybeans, may seed out that crop more aggressively in view of the limited supply of corn. Extension specialists should be consulted for details regarding need for controls. Depending upon distribution of rains, access to fields by ground equipment will probably be a problem before mid- September in some sections. Extended outlooks are good guides for scheduling applications least likely to be washed off by subsequent rains.

The trend for below normal warmth and above normal wetting fits the needs of soybeans fairly well by supplying moisture for podfilling. More vegetative stimulus and slower maturation of fruit may be the consequence in cotton. Preservation of fruit already set will be a major motive for adequate insect control, especially in a season that got off to a late start and remains behind as far as normal crop development.

Soil water recharge is not likely to be a problem, unless we find trouble spots repeatedly missed by rains. These should be few in number. National Weather Service agricultural stations showed that all August rain to date was measured from the 10th to 14th. Amounts were variable, and ranged from 1.18 inches at Malden to 1.59 at Poplar Bluff, 2.05 at East Prairie, 2.77 inches at Sikeston, 4.05 at Portageville, and 5.04 inches at Kennett. While volume of water delivered varied somewhat, area distribution was improved.

Normal rainfall for the period mid- August through mid- September for the Missouri Bootheel as a whole is 3.30 inches.

Soybean pest getting ahead of growers

COLUMBIA— The scoreboard now reads, "Soybean Cyst Nematode 4. Soybean Growers 3."

The game isn't over, but it looks like the best growers can hope for is a tie.

"The soybean cyst nematode is the most serious soybean problem in Missouri's Bootheel," reports Chuck Baldwin, plant pathologist at the University of Missouri's Delta Center. "Race 3 of this disease has infested 1.5 million of the 1.7 million acres of soybeans grown in this area.

"Growers can control Race 3 with either Nemagon or Fumazone, soil fumigants that eliminate the first cyst generation and get soybean seedlings off to a good start."

Jim Ford, soybean breeder at the Delta Center, says growers have to fumigate every year, use crop rotation or use Race 3 resistant varieties-- just to stay even with Race 3.

But right now, they can't even stay even. Race 4 is on the scene.

Varieties that were resistant to Race 3 are not resistant to Race 4.

Both fumigants and crop rotation are needed to control Race 4, and they are by no means perfect in their abilities to thwart the disease.

Baldwin tests over a thousand soil samples taken from soybean fields each year to determine the extent of the disease and to get more information that will help put it under control. The way things are going, he would settle for a "tie" with the pest--just being able to manage it at a level soybean growers can afford to tolerate.

"Even if we do find a control for Race 4," says Baldwin, "it probably won't end there. In another seven years, we could be working on Race 5 or 6."

Ford and Leo DuClos, Delta Center soybean breeder now on assignment in Brazil, have already screened about 4,000 lines against Race 4. About 200 show resistance to the cyst. These have been planted in "hot spots" for further screening.

Ford is now giving special attention to a crossbreeding program to get this resistance into commercial bean types.

Varieties may be scarce

BLOOMFIELD— Several inquiries from farmers pertaining to wheat varieties to plant this year have already come to the University Extension Center in Bloomfield. Farmers may have trouble finding varities they want to plant this season due to the small acreage of wheat harvested for seed in 1972.

Results of wheat variety trials conducted at the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville show a comparison of varieties included in the trials during recent years.

This yield data might serve as a guide to farmers as to varieties that they want to plant this season:

Monon, 1970- 72, 41.0 bushels per acre; 1972, 35.3; 1973, 17.8; Knox 62, 1970-72, 44.3 bushels per acre; 1972, 37.1; 1973, 26.8; Stadler, 1970-72, 45.1 bushels per acre; 1972, 38.6; 1973, 21.7; Benhur, 1970- 72, 43.8 bushels per acre; 1972, 41.4; 1973, 28.1.

Blueboy, 1970- 72, 43.4; 1972, 32.8; Blueboy II, 1972, 42.8; 1973, 34.7; Arthur, 1970- 72, 49.1 bushels per acre; 1972, 47.3; 1973, 35.5; Arthur 71, 1972, 46.7; 1973, 33.4;

The three- year average yields, 1970- 72 will serve as a more dependable guide to the selection of varieties for those varieties included. The 1972 and 1973 results were outlined to show yields of new varieties compared to those of other varieties.

Arthur 71, a relatively new variety, was derived from Arthur and has improved resistance to all known races of Hessian Fly and leaf rust compared to Arthur. It has not performed as well as Arthur during the past two years, however.

Blueboy II is also a relatively new variety which is earlier, higher in test weight, more resistant to leaf rust and more winterhardy than Blueboy.

Abe is an early, stiff-strawed variety which has resistance to leaf rust and Hessian Fly. Although it has performed well in northern Missouri, its yields have fallen below those of Arthur, its parent variety, in Southeast Missouri.

Stoddard is a Stadler X Redcoat cross developed by University of Missouri. It is a medium height, stiff strawed, disease- resistant variety. Research results indicate that it has a high yield potential in spite of its relatively poor showing last year.

Coker 68- 15 is a semi-dwarf commercial variety that is very short and stiff strawed. It has high yielding ability, high test weight and is resistant to leaf rust and soil- borne mosaic.

McNair 4823 is also a commercial variety which has resistance to leaf rust and some races of stem rust but is susceptible to some races of mildew.

Additional information pertaining to wheat varieties may be obtained upon request from your county University of Missouri extension center.

1973 Mo. soybean production expected to be record high

The Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service has announced that the Missouri 1973 soybean production is expected to be 123.5 million bushels, 11 per cent above last year's record production of 110.9 million bushels.

This record production is accounted for by a large increase in harvested acreage, 4,750,000 acres in 1973 compared to 3,960,000 acres in 1972. Average yield per acre for 1973 is estimated at 26.0 bushels, down two bushels from the 28.0 bushels per acre of the 1972 crop.

Production of corn in Missouri during 1973 is estimated at 228.8 million bushels, an increase of one percent from last years production. Expected average yield per acre is 88 bushels, three bushels below the 91 bushels per acre average yield of the 1972 crop.

1973 production of all hay in Missouri is estimated at 5.6 million tons, only slightly above the 5.5 million tons produced in 1972. Average yield per acre of the 1973 crop is expected to be 1.79 tons, down from the 1.91 tons per acre of the 1972 crop.

Wheat production for Missouri during 1973 is estimated at 26.4 million bushels, down 27 percent from the 36.1 million bushels produced in 1972. The decline is because of a decrease in both yield and harvested acres. The 1973 average yield per acre is estimated at 31.0 bushels compared to 39.0 bushels in 1972. Harvested acreage at 850,000 acres this year is down eight percent from the 925,000 acres harvested last year in Missouri. The estimated production of cotton in Missouri during 1973 is 160,000 bales, down sharply from the 439,000 bales produced in 1972. The average yield is estimated at 427 pounds compared to 520 pounds in 1972.

Grain sorghum production in Missouri during 1973 is expected to be 31.5 million bushels, up 17 percent from the 1972 production but 34 percent below the record high production in 1971. Yield per acre at 70 bushels is one bushel below the 71 bushels yield last year. Harvested acreage during 1973 is estimated at 450,000 acres, up 18 percent from the 380,000 acres harvested during 1972 in Missouri.

Production of corn for grain in the United States is estimated at 5,661 million bushels--- two percent above last years level. Harvested acreage is expected to be 61.5 million acres, seven percent above the 57.3 million acres harvested in 1972. Yield per acre at 92.1 bushels is down from the 96.9 bushels realized last year.

Soybean production is estimated at a record high, 1,540 million bushels, compared to the previous record high of 1,283 million bushels produced during 1972. This production is from an increase in harvested acreage, 56.2 million acres for harvest this year, compared to 45.8 million acres last year. The average yield per acre is expected to be slightly below last year, 27.4 bushels, compared to 28.0 bushels per acre in 1972.

Production of all hay is slightly below last year at 125.9 million tons, compared to 128.4 million tons harvested during 1972.

All cotton production for the United States is estimated at 12.7 million bales, down seven percent from one year ago. Harvested acreage at 12.4 million acres is four percent below the 13.0 million acres harvested during 1972. The yield per acre is estimated at 493 pounds, 14 pounds below last year.

U. S. winter wheat production for 1973 is estimated at 1,293 million bushels, an increase of nine percent from 1972. Although the yield per acre at 33.5 bushels is slightly lower than the 34.0 bushels last year, harvested acreage was higher allowing production to exceed that of a year ago.

THE Old Timer

"Offer anybody a penny for his thoughts and you're apt to get a piece of his mind."

'New model' cotton sought

PORTAGEVILLE— Scientists here are working on a "new model" cotton that could double Missouri's cotton acreage.

"It's one that produces short, coarse fibers used in disposable wear," reports Bill Sappenfield, who heads up cotton breeding research at the University of Missouri's Delta Center here.

"The idea is to breed a short season cotton that we could plant after our normal crop (about May 15 to 20) and harvest ahead of our normal crop. The short, coarse fiber crop would complement our regular cotton crop and help farmers and gin operators make better use of their equipment."

Sappenfield believes that this new "cotton culture" could add 300,000 more acres of cotton to the 400,000 already grown in Missouri's Bootheel.

Working under a grant from Cotton, Inc., Sappenfield and his colleagues at the Delta Center are taking a "systems approach" to developing the new model cotton. At the same time new varieties are being developed, other scientists are working on fertilization, narrow row spacing, new harvesters, weed control, diseases and insect pests.

"This won't work unless we have the varieties and cultural practices to do the job," said Sappenfield. "The shorter fibers don't bring as good a price as the standard crop, so we need to get more production per acre. That means more plants per acre--narrower rows-- and plants that grow in less time.

"And we have to develop a low cost, brush type stripper to harvest this cotton."

Bill Boon, assistant superintendent of the Delta Center, has developed such a harvester and will test it this season.

The short, coarse fiber produced by the new cotton will be tough enough to withstand rough handling. Boon and Sappenfield agree that's a good characteristic, because cotton millers want clean cotton, and the short fibers can stand up to almost any cleaning process.

Some new short fibered cotton varieties have already been developed by Sappenfield and are undergoing further testing at the Center this year. Then in a year or two, the new varieties, the cultural practices to grow them, and the harvesters to pick them will be turned over to growers.

Scott District competing for honors

The Scott County Soil and Water Conservation District is in the race for top honors in the 27th annual Goodyear Conservation Awards Program, K. M. Streeter of Painton, Scott County SWCD chairman, has announced.

The district is competing on the basis of its record of service to land users in the contest sponsored by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company in cooperation with the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD). An independent judging committee will select the award- winning districts.

Each first place district will receive expense- paid, vacation-study trips for its outstanding cooperator and a member of the governing board. Representatives of the top 53 districts nationally will be the tire company's guests on the grand awards tour. Last year's winners went to Marco Island, Fla.

The awards program also provides recognition of the outstandingg cooperator who will be selected by the district board from the 522 land users enrolled in Scott County Soil & Water Conservation District's program.

Grundy County Soil and Water Conservation District was First place winner in 1972.

Members of the district governing board are K. M. Streeter, Franklin Schlosser, Bob Laseter, Paul Stuckey and John Garrett.

55 participate in meetings on sorghum midge

BLOOMFIELD — Fifty-five persons, including farmers, farm supply dealers and vocational agriculture teachers participated in two sorghum midge meetings in grain sorghum fields on the Bob Miller farm near Dexter and the John Johnson farm near Bell City last Aug. 10.

The meetings were held to better acquaint farmers with the sorghum midge and how to control this pest. The midge is a small, gnat- sized insect which can do serious damage to the grain sorghum crop once the population of this pest is built to an adequate level.

Various aspects of midge control including how to find and identify the midge, how to determine when a field should be sprayed and recommended control measures were discussed by Flernoy Jones, area entomology specialist from the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville.

Persons attending were given an opportunity to find and identify the midge according to suggested procedures. A mimeographed publication, "Grain Sorghum Insects and Their control", was given to each person present.

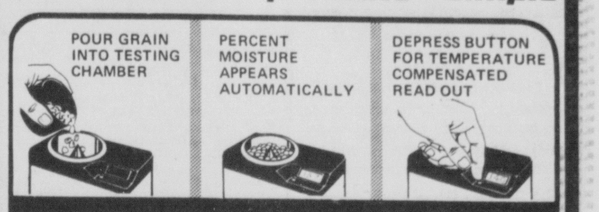

Arrangement for the meeting were made by Stoddard County extension personnel.

E. Prairie youth attends meeting

EAST PRAIRIE — Dart Davis of East Prairie Route One was one of over 750 Future Farmers of America youth scholars from throughout the United States who attended the Aug. 6-9 National Institute on Cooperative Education at Tulane and Loyola Universities in New Orleans, La.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Davis of East Prairie.

While at the institute, youth scholars explored career opportunities with cooperatives, discussed the American economic system and selected two "associate youth trustees" who will attend meetings of the American Institute of Cooperation (AIC) board of trustees.

Davis, sponsored by Missouri Production Credit Associations, also participated with adults at the institute in a number of general sessions featuring nationally- prominent speakers. The youth scholar programs included "rap sessions" with AIC trustees and other cooperative leaders, case study sessions on how cooperatives operate, a visual presentation of the various types of cooperatives in the South and their services, as well as a program on cooperative business philosophy.

Other program highlights for the youth scholars included a tour of the two university campuses and the historic French Quarter, an agri-business boat tour of the New Orleans port, talent and awards programs; and a party and dance.

Youth Scholars from more than 40 states were represented at the institute, which was sponsored by the American Institute of Cooperation, Washington, D.C., and leaders of farmer cooperative organizations in Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi. AIC is a national educational organization serving more than 1,200 farm cooperatives and their members.

Cigarettes taken from machine

MOREHOUSE — Burglars entered the Running Horse Cafe between 3 a.m. and 6 a.m. today, taking an undetermined number of cigarettes from a vending machine.

Morehouse Police Chief Slim Rodgers said the thieves were apparently interested only in cigarettes and ignored a juke box also in the cafe. The coin box in the cigarette machine had been emptied before the break-in.

Rodgers said the burglars entered the cafe by prying open a back door.

Fair in full swing

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) — Randy Fenwick, 12, of Hamilton, knew before the Missouri Fair opened that his Hampshire ram would be the champion of the 4H Club livestock show.

Randy's spring lamb earlier won first place in district judging at Trenton and "after he won there, I knew he'd win here," he said. The lamb was named the best Hampshire ram at the fair.

V. B. Vandiver, the fair's sheep superintendent, said the sheep show is the best he can remember, both in number and quality of entries.

Randy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fenwick, said he will show his lamb against next year as a yearling ram.

The champion Milking Shorthorn cow is a 3-year-old owned by Linda Finkbiner, 11, of Springfield, a 4-H exhibition. Linda said her cow was too fat to gain attention in last year's fair but is just right this time.

Kelly Kunkel of Carthage showed the champion Jersey cow in the 4-H division, and remarked "it was a lot of work" getting ready.

Three generations of the Walther family in the Boonville area continued a tradition of winning prizes with good corn.

C. H. E. "Grandpa" Walther surpassed his son Jacob, and three grandsons, Ernest, Carl and William. Grandpa had the champion 10 ears of yellow seed corn, and first place in three other classes. Jacob had a champion and a second place. Altogether, the Walthers collected 15 ribbons.

Curtis Smith, 15, of the Brighton Boys Ranch, showed the best 4-H Hampshire ewe.

Three members of the Doak family of Vandalia, Mo., Debbie, 18, Garett, 16, and Steven, 15, collected 40 ribbons in the 4H Southdown sheep competition.

The Doaks have been showing Southdowns at the fair nine years and have had many champions. Debbie said they each brought eight sheep this time.

They also have exhibited their sheep at the Illinois, Ohio and Michigan fairs, and will show their prize winners Wednesday in the open competition for Southdowns.

"The Best Cookie At The Fair" is a gingersnap baked by Mrs. P. L. Strole of Sedalia, who got a $100 savings bond for her entry.

Susan Herman of Sedalia had some brownies that were judged the best in the girls' division. Susan Bauer of Harrisonville had a winner in the breads category. The sweepstakes award went to Mrs. Alfred Rodenberg of Napoleon.

JR. BABE RUTH

SENIOR BABE RUTH

REVIEW OF THE 1973 SEASON

Priday heads Jr. BR

Bill Priday became the newly named Jr. Babe Ruth Commissioner this year when he stepped in to fill the vacancy left by the ailing Arthur Bruce.

Mr. Priday, easily recognized from his former post as Sikeston High School's head football coach, is now assistant principal at the Jr. High. Though a busy man with a big schedule, he volunteered his own time to the Babe Ruth program.

Though this is Mr. Priday's first actual job in the league, he has been indirectly associated with it for the past two to three years. His son, Ron, has played in the program since the age of 13. It was just at the start of the season that Mr. Priday became involved with the league. He had joined Lee Shell to manage and coach the Davis & Bird Insurance team, but when the opening came for a commissioner, Bill Priday offered his services. His new job began the first of July, after the season had gotten underway.

The program has seen little expansion from the previous years. A pick-up of 15 boys were made from last season's total of 120 to this year's 135, but a new team was not started and the league remained with eight teams competing for the Jr. title.

"There are hopes of expanding," stated Commissioner Priday, "but it's so difficult to say what the plans are until we see what we have to work with."

He made reference to the new baseball complex still under construction. "There's no doubt that the fields will give us the room for expansion that we need, but we also have to see how many boys are brought up from the little leagues. If we have the boys and space is available, then of course we'll broaden the program."

Bill Priday

As league commissioner, Mr. Priday has the demanding responsibility of the entire program. This includes such things as overseeing try-outs and the drafting of players. Mr. Priday put in extra time when he went out to open and close the VFW park on the nights the Jr. Babe Ruth teams competed, which was approximately four times a week.

He also has the job of scheduling along with helping the Jr. Leaguers raise money for equipment. Money is, of course, essential to any program of this type and here is where the sponsors come in. The fee they pay help go to the purchasing of equipment. In addition, any money that the boys in the program earn from working a corn dog stand at the Cotton Carnival is given to the league plus any that is raised from the Jr. Babe Ruth tournament.

The second annual tourney, hosted by Sikeston, proved to be quite successful. The Invitational, which was headed by Mr. Priday, drew 12 area teams into the competition for a shot at the title.

Commissioner Priday stated, however, that he could not claim all the credit for such a good season. Four other men are involved in the program as officers and they have helped to make it what it is and their time and

Stars romp

The Sikeston Musial League All- Stars have swept two area tournaments to earn seven straight victories on their way to two big championship titles. Their first win came in the Sikeston Invitational and they followed that up a week later with win number two under their belts from the East Prairie Invitational.

A second Sikeston 9- 10 Year Old team, called the Aces, have also distinguished themselves in tourney play. They too placed in the home Invitational, taking third. In the East Prairie event, the Aces were forced to take a second place seating to that of their buddy team, the All-Stars.

The East Prairie Invitational was the highlight of the season for all concerned. It pitted two home teams together in what proved to be quite an amusing battle.

The All- Stars blasted their way past the Aces 5- 1 during first inning play. Bats were stilled in the second but the pace was picked back up in the third when the Stars put four on the board compared to that of the Aces' three to remain the leader. The Aces faltered and all efforts to score failed. A lone run in the fifth inning put the final score in favor of the All- Stars 10- 4 for an exciting tournament win.

Standard 11-2

The Daily Standard of the Musial Little League ran away with the league championship for the 73 season. Their 11- 2 record swept both divisions, which consisted of five teams each.

In a little league division, upsets are often seen and a good record is hard to come by. Wins and losses come and go and season marks are usually found to be close, one way or another. But not so with the Standard.

By the middle of the season, it became apparent that the Daily Standard was the team to beat, but the problem was that it was easier said than done. They were a tough little team with high hopes and great determination. Consistent ball playing, both defensively and offensively, helped to lead them to a winning season.

One of their two losses during regular season play was in a bout with Kingsway Plaza Mall. It was one of those nights for the Standard as Kingsway simply outplayed the top team, catching them sleeping and grabbing off a 4- 0 win. Another loss was added to that, but the Standard team had had enough of losing and went on to build their record to a double figure in the win column, the only team in their league to do so.

The Daily Standard lost their bid for a second championship when they dropped from the city tournament contention in quarter- finals to the eventual winner, Nunnelee Funeral Home.

Though a disappointing loss, the Standard team has much to be proud of. The boys have many years of ball playing ahead of them and they will no doubt display their fine abilities in the coming seasons as they did in the summer of 73.

Sr. league needs field

Gerald Howard is a familiar face in the crowd at any Sr. Babe Ruth League game, and he should well be. Mr. Howard has been affiliated with the program since its beginning, which was six years ago, and became League Commissioner at the start of the third season.

There has been no expansion since 1967 because Sr. Babe Ruth has run into problems of space. This year the VFW park was only open to them twice a week in allowance of the scheduling of Jr. Babe Ruth games. Commissioner Howard has stated hopes that the new complex, expected to be ready for next season's play, will ease the problems of crowding and allow for new opportunities for boys in the sport of baseball.

One of Mr. Howard's major jobs is to first group the boys into teams. At the age of 16, boys step out of the Jr. Babe Ruth program into the Sr. League. The commissioner must then take the names and with the managers hold try- outs. Drafting is also used in the division of players. When asked about this season's turnout, Commissioner Howard stated, "It was a disappointing year, for only 18 out of the 37 boys who could have moved into the Sr. Babe Ruth League from the Jr. League tried out." But he added that the new boys helped add to the success of the league and hopes are high for bigger turnouts as the years progress and expansion is made possible.

Scheduling is also on Mr. Howard's list of jobs. A 14-game schedule was drawn up for this season of play, but their efforts to complete the schedule fell two games short. A rainy summer produced some trouble, but the Sr. Leaguers managed to make up all but one of the rain- outs. Another problem was posed as time ran out on the program. The District play-offs were to be held only a few days after the final game of the season for the Seniors, which left the All- Stars practically no time at all for a practice together as a team. So the last game of the summer was dropped from the schedule for that reason.

Gerald Howard

The District play- offs were held here in Sikeston for the second consecutive year. Mr. Howard, who planned both of the three-team tournaments, said that it also was the second year that a Sikeston team had won the tourney which gave them the chance to move into state play.

When asked about the representation that Sikeston has contributed to the state Sr. Babe Ruth program, he said, "Sikeston teams have participated in state play for about five years now. The closest we have ever gotten is second place, but the major point is the fine teams that we have produced. The boys who participate in the program have always been good representatives of the city of Sikeston, on and off the field, of which all may be proud." He added that it holds true for all participants of the Sr. Babe Ruth League.

Speaking of the duties of a baseball commissioner, Mr. Howard went on to say that he had to check the field and equipment for their state of condition and to make sure the schedule ran smoothly. But the major factor he sighted to a good program is the cooperation of the managers. "Unless you can work and get along well with the managers," he stated, "you fail in your attempt for success."

Security National Bank finished the season with a 5-7 record and third place while the Elks Club rounded out the standings with a record of 1-11.

Mitchell Walker and John Leible, both players on the Leible Implement team, have received special recognition for their playing during 1973 season. Walker received a plaque for pitching a no- run- no- hit game and Leible received one for holding the highest batting average in the league, which was a .524.

efforts have been sincerely appreciated by Mr. Priday.

William Sexton is the commissioner's right- hand man as assistant commissioner. Leonard Campbell has the job of secretary - treasurer and N. P. McDaniels holds the position of player agent. L. A. Garner is in charge of obtaining the umpires and officials for each game.

Despite the rain-outs, Commissioner Priday said that the year had proved to be a big success. It was made so through the work put forth by the sponsors, coaches, managers, and all others who helped in some way. A program of this sort is important not only to the boys, but to the community itself, and when the prople of the community has the good will to give their time, it makes for a much more rewarding program.

Security National Champs

Security National Bank clinched the National Little League Division pennant in a play- off game with the defending champion, the Jaycees. After a 14 game schedule, the two teams remained in a deadlock. The slim 3- 2 victory for Security National gave them an 11- 4 record to finish the season.

It was a game of revenge for the title- holders as the Jaycees defeated them only the night before for the City League Tournament championship. Actually, the game was a carbon copy of the night before but the tables turned and the eventual winner was Security National.

Jeff Young played an important part in the win as he did all season for Security National. The Bank had built up a 3- 0 advantage going into the final inning. The Jaycees, famous for their rallies, brought across two runs but fell short of their reach for a tying score as Young struck out a pinch hitter with a runner at third for the final out and the claim to a league title.

Though there is no doubt that the league winning game was a most exciting one for the boys, another game is a standout in the minds of the team. One of the highlights of the season was a 12 inning affair with the Kiwanis. Joey Dial, usually the catcher for the Bank, pitched the game and earned the 4- 2 win.

Coaches Orvill Lipe and Bill Bye both site determination of the boys as the main factor behind their winning season. And when considering their record of 5- 9 from last year, they have come a long way.

Christie new LL commissioner

Ray Christie is constantly a man on the go, yet when George Butler stepped down from the job of Little League Commissioner, Mr. Christie accepted the position.

"Little League is just more than playing ball," stated Mr. Christie. "Often, it is a boy's first taste of competition and if he can learn to handle that well, he can learn to handle all other competition well." And with that statement, Ray Christie took over and kept the league in well-running order.

He has been associated with baseball for the last five years. Being a manager filled his spare time for two years. He then added the job of Secretary- Treasurer to that of his previous one for an additional two years. In his fifth year, he was named Commissioner.

Mr. Christie is aided in his job by Dr. Larry Lester, who filled the vacancy of Secretary- Treasurer. Also serving in office are the National League Managers. The seven men act as a rules committee and governing body. They are: Jack Jackson, Lewis Furniture, Bill McDowell of Kiwanis, Jim Ramsey of the Lions Club, Jim Wilson of Pizza Inn, Terry Shaver of A & B, Bill Bye of Security National, Walter Wilson of the Legion and Ray Christie of the Jaycees.

We asked Commissioner Christie what his job actually involved and the list proved to be quite long. He said that the basic factor was to keep the league moving. There's the responsibility of equipment, and making sure it was in good condition. Also, any orders for purchases by the managers had to go through him.

Umpires had to be obtained and present at all games. There was the upkeep on the park that had to be attended to also. Mr. Christie commented, "We tried to spend as little on the parks as we possibly could this year because we were told that we would be in the new complex by next season."

But when speaking of the concession stands, the commissioner explained, "We've been having trouble with them all year. Of course, it's part of the job to keep them stocked and kept up, but there was just too much vandalism to try to do too much with them." He wanted to point out that little leaguers did not seem to be involved.

Another major item of the commissioner's post is a telephone. People are constantly calling him and he has to be ready to handle all or any problems which come up.

The little league program suffered a decrease in the number of boys participating this season. Mr. Christie stated that there had been some difficulty in filling the 28 teams and they may even have to drop a few teams next year for lack of players.

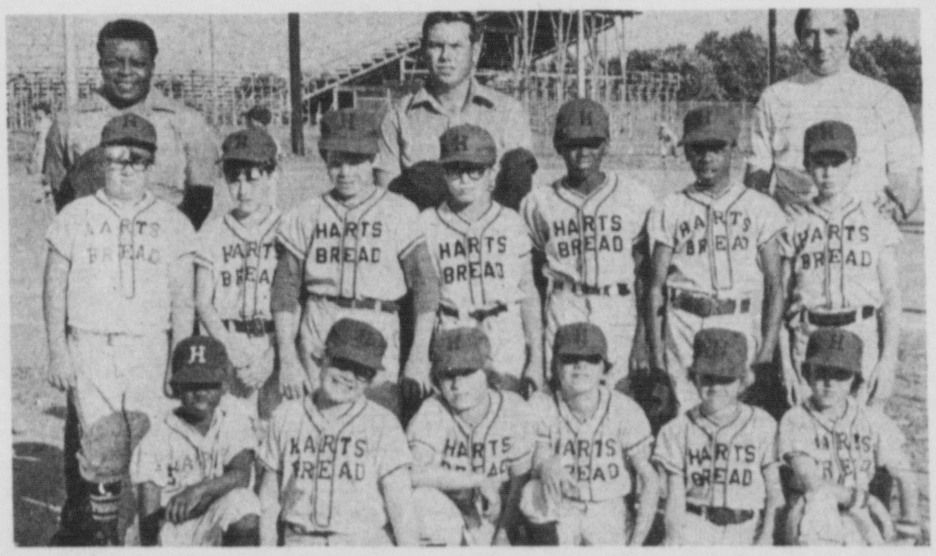

Expansion in the last two years was good. They had picked up two teams in 71 and four in 72, but in 73 the growth stopped. Between boys moving away and a few drop-outs, the teams had an average of 12 to 13 players by mid-season.

Though little league had their bumps and bruises Mr. Christie termed the season as a success. A program such as this one is important to young boys and as long as people like Mr. Christie will donate their time, little league will go on being a success.

Fabick wins AL pennant

After a close running battle for the claim to the American Little League Division title, Fabick came out on top. Both Fabick and Ryan stood at 11- 1 when the final game on the schedule just happened to place the two into competition for one of the most exciting games of the season. It was a hard fought battle, but only one team could come out victor and the final outcome was in Fabick's favor, 8- 2.

Fabick played an outstanding game and showed what champions are made of. They could do nothing wrong and the brillant playing stunned the Ryan team. They too had worked for the chance at the division title, but things were clicking for the Fabick squad and all efforts by Ryan to put a halt to the opposition's hitting failed.

Kevin Self pitched the game and was in top form that night. He shut- out Ryan during the first three innings of play while his teammates backed him up in the hitting department, gaining five runs to take the lead. Ryan did score in the fourth and sixth, but their single runs in each inning did not put a dent in Fabick's enthusiasm. Three additional runs were put on the scoreboard for the icing on the cake to carry Fabick to the big win.

As in the other leagues, the Division winner was upset in their try for the City Tournament title. Ryan pulled the rug out from under Fabick to gain revenge for the earlier loss. But to both teams, congratulations are in order for such a well-played and entertaining season.

Nunnelee big surprise

Nunnelee was the surprise team in the Musial Little League City Tournament this year as they rose from the lower ranks in the standings to upset the tourney favorites.

A West Division team, Nunnelee was in fourth place holding a season record of 6-7. But records don't always tell the story, as Nunnelee well proved.

Nunnelee came face to face with Daily Standard, the league's top team in both divisions, in quarter- final round play of the tourney and pulled off an upset.

Trailing 10-2, Nunnelee broke through for five big runs to put them within reach of the Daily Standard. Cortez Smith came in as relief pitcher in the fourth inning and allowed only one hit for the Standard during the final three innings of play while his teammates brought in five additional runs to capture one of their most exciting wins of the season.

But if upsetting the top team in the league was exciting, even more so was their win over Bank of Sikeston which gave them the City title. After a 1-1 tie in the first inning, Nunnelee began moving and gaining ground on Bank of Sikeston. At the end of the second inning, the Bank trailed 5-3, but third inning play told the story. Nunnelee's consistent playing payed off when six runs came across the plate to assure them of their first place win.

Collins Construction made a late inning rally to pick up a third place win in the tourney. Harts Bread had gained the early advantage when they slipped two runs across in the first inning. Collins moved within one during third inning play and took the lead over in the fifth. Harts faltered after their one inning of scoring and had to settle for fourth place.

Sports Complex still a dream

The dream of the new Sikeston recreational complex of eight baseball fields, thought to be completed for this summer of play, is still just that-- a dream. Progress of the development of the fields has been slow, surpassing the estimate date of completion.

Basically, the city is doing the work, but contracts have been made. The ball fields, which take up one third to one half of the 140 acres in the park, is now in the process of being graded. The bulk of electrical lighting is ordered and will be set up when the grading is finished. City Manager Jim Huff stated that the fields will be completed in time for next year's summer season.

The complex is to be used by the Sikeston Little League and Babe Ruth League programs. Completion of the project is urgent for all associated with summer baseball. Teams have had little room for expansion because of the limited playing facilities and crowded schedules.

The park seems to hold the answer to all problems and once again, as last year, everyone keeps their fingers crossed in hopes that their dream of the new complex opening next summer will come true.

Ryan upsets Fabick

Turn- about's fair play as showed in the American Little League this year. Ryan Construction finished second behind Fabick in the regular season standings and had to battle past them to gain title to the championship of the American League City Tournament. And Ryan did just that-- knocking off the league champs with a 4- 3 decision. Police claimed third place in the tourney when they defeated Bridger Plumbing & Heating 12- 1.

The deciding game was a tight battle. Four and a half innings went scoreless before a mark was put on the board and it was Fabick who finally broke through. They picked up a 2- 0 edge in the bottom of the fifth but Ryan turned right around in the following inning and sent four runs home after seven straight hits with one out.

Fabick was caught in a struggle and could not pull out of it. Their first two batters made it on base but hitting failed them and only one was able to make it across home plate. Polley's strong arm came through when he fanned three batters with the bases loaded to save the game and the win.

The Police had little trouble with their defeat of Bridger. They jumped on them 7- 1 in the first inning which gave them the lead and the eventual victory.

Musial stars champs

Sikeston hosted their annual 9-10 Year Old Invitational this summer and the event proved to be a big success. Twelve area teams competed for the championship title which finally went to a home team, the Musial League All-Stars.

After a heavy rain delayed the opening games of the tourney, the teams went into action the following night. Dexter earned the step ahead in their defeat over Parma. Jackson downed Bertrand and the Sikestoll-Stars sent Charleston home a beaten team.

In second round play, another Sikeston team, the Aces, followed in the footsteps of Stars when they captured a win, beating New Madrid. Oran pulled out a close one over Chaffee and Illmo- Scott City tripped East Prairie in a hard fought battle.

Dexter ran into bad luck during the quarter - finals. Jackson blanked them 10-0 to shut-out them out of further competition. The Aces followed suit, earning just as big a win over Oran 19-8 to stay in contention for the title. Sikeston All-Stars and Illmo-Scott City drew byes to put them in the semi-final round.

It looked like the All-Stars had met their match when they went up against Jackson. Their opponents jumped on them 3-2 in first inning play to gain the early advantage. It wasn't until the third inning that the All-Stars could score, and the single run they brought across put the score at a tie. Jackson was caught napping and Sikeston moved ahead when in the following inning they scored two quick runs to take the lead. Coming back in the fifth, Jackson tried to match that but came up one run short and still trailed. The All-Stars halted the Jackson team by adding four insurance runs in the final inning to place in the finals.

The Aces suffered an off-night and Illmo- Scott City swept by to take a whopping 14-2 victory. Scott City did the most damage in the opening inning when they moved past the Aces scoring six runs. For the second inning, the Aces remained scoreless and while only a lone run came in for Scott City, the game was just too far out of reach for the Sikeston team. They put up a valiant effort, but were caught in a struggle and could not pull out of it. Illmo went into another hitting streak during the fourth and seven runs were brought around to end the game in four innings. Scott City had earned the right to challenge another Sikeston team for the tournament championship.

The tourney was on home ground and the majority of the fans were rooting for the two Sikeston teams, and what better time to make a good showing. The All-Stars and Aces played steady, consistent ball to take their respective wins. The Aces captured third place when they turned back Jackson 13-7. and the All-Stars earned the big one with an 8-4 decision over Illmo- Sc City.

Kevin Self was voted Most Valuable Player of the tourney along with Scott Little of Illmo- Scott City. Self was an outstanding player throughout the Invitational. He pitched the first game of the tournament which advanced the team, and then contributed his talents once again in the championship game when he led the All-Stars to that win.

Six players from the two Sikeston teams were noted for their play. Outstanding players were: Ricky Hammock, Mary Williams, Mike Hurley and Earl Daniels of the Aces; Steve McDowell and Steve Green of the Stars.

NL stars win third

Puckett Field was again the site of the Sikeston 11-12 Year Old Sikeston Invitational this season. Fifteen area teams competed in the annual event to help pull off one of the most successful tournaments in years. Illmo- Scott City battled their way through the maze of teams to carry home the championship trophy. Poplar Bluff came close but it wasn't enough and they took a second place win. The Sikeston All- Stars finished third and Jackson fourth to round out the tourney winners.

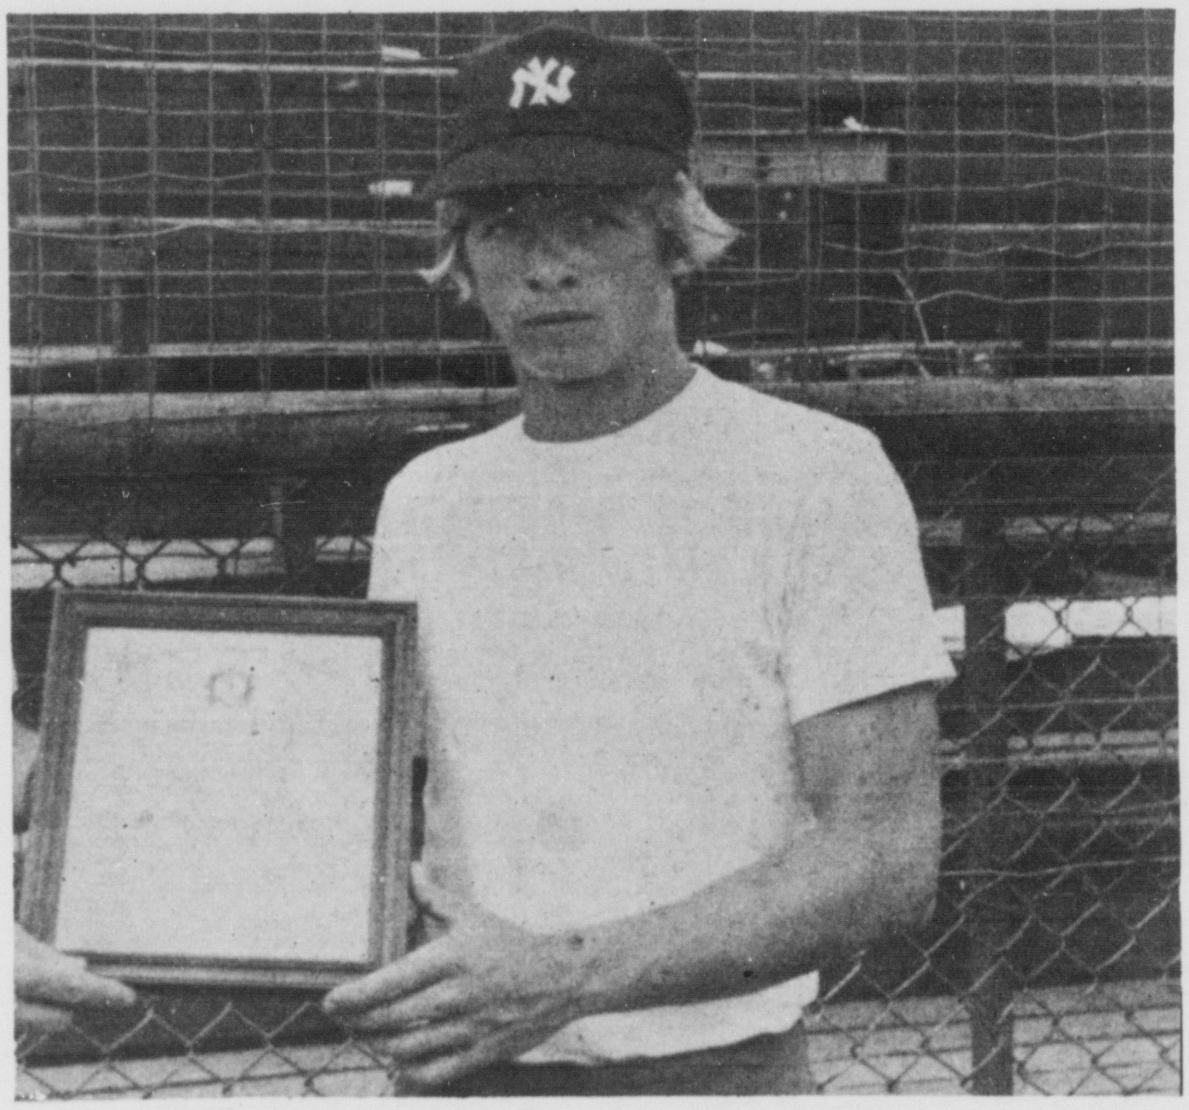

Three Sikeston teams were entered to represent the home town. The American All- Stars were eliminated in first round action when they went up against Bertrand and fell, 16-0. The National Aces had better luck, defeating Bloomfield 5-2 to move them one step ahead, but they met their match when they went into the game with Poplar Bluff. When the dust cleared, P. B. had come out the victors in a tight 2-1 decision.

The National All- Stars were the only Sikeston team to remain in competition. Their first win came over Dexter, 4-1. Charleston was their second victim, when they defeated them 9-4. Poplar Bluff was the next team in Sikeston's way and when they went up against them, it was all over. P.B. proved to be too much for the Stars to handle that night. Sikeston was kept scoreless for five straight innings and a single run in the sixth was not enouch to catch Poplar Bluff, and they moved into the finals on a 6-1 won.

Just as quick as the Stars had failed in their efforts to play a winning game, just as quick as they made a come-back. Sikeston was up for the game and came out with one of their finest showings. Jeff Young pitched the 4-0 shutout for the Sikeston team, to help lead them to a third place standing in the tourney.

Illmo- Scott City captured the tournament win in extra innings. Poplar Bluff was on the losing end of the 7-5 score.

The Sikeston All- Stars also placed third in the Poplar Bluff Invitational. Russell Deal was voted Most Valuable Player and Kenny Standridge and Jeff Young were named to the Honorable Mention list.

Pitching star

Mitchell Walker displays the plaque he received this season for hurling a no-hitter during Sr. Babe Ruth League play. Walker also led the Sr. Stars into the state tournament.

Sr. Ruth stars district champs

The Sikeston Sr. Babe Ruth All- Stars won the District championship once again this year, but were halted in their attempts for a shot at the State title.

Behind the pitching of Mitchell Walker, the Stars earned an 8- 1 victory over the SEMO Stars in first round action of the District tournament. They found their next opponents to be a little tougher to handle. The Chaffee- Jackson All- Stars were out- hit by the Sikeston team, yet came out on the winning end of the score, 7-6.

Hopes remained alive when the Stars faced SEMO in their third outing and defeated them in what turned out to be a 1- 0 pitching duel. SEMO threatened to score in the seventh, but Sikeston held them at bay to move ahead.

The Sr. Stars were now facing the Chaffee- Jackson team who needed only a single win to claim the championship, but Sikeston had other ideas. They played a outstanding ball to coast to the title. They soundly beat Chaffee- Jackson 15- 1 and then 7- 2 for the tie- breaker and a trip to the State tournament.

Sikeston made the trip to Sedalia and were soon disappointed when they were dumped into the loser bracket their first game. Their first round opponents, Kansas City Sugar Creek, turned them back 3- 0. The All- Stars then went up against Jefferson City and strong pitching finished further competition for Sikeston as Jeff City captured an 8- 2 decision.

Jr. Ruth teams place

It was the year for home team victors as two Sikeston teams placed in the annual Jr. Babe Ruth Tournament. The All-Stars shut-out Chaffee 5-0 to capture the championship title and the Reds were defeated in the final two innings of play to suffer a 9-4 loss at the hands of Scott City to finish in four place.

Rick Taylor contributed his pitching talents to be credited with the big win and was then named the tourney's most valuable player.

Four innings went scoreless and it was Sikeston who finally made a break-through by putting one run on the board. Chaffee had lost their touch that have moved them through the tourney and all efforts failed to advance them. The All-Stars began connecting and four runs were brought in to give them the big win.

Scott City had to battle back from a 4-2 deficit in the fifth inning to overcome the Reds. They brought the score to a 4-all tie in the sixth and then went on to score an additional five runs in the seventh to take third place.

Sr. League

Success this year was made possible by the men who took their own time to come out and work with the boys – Jim Saulters of Security National Bank, Don Miller of Optimist Club, Ron Greenlee of Leible Implement and Gary Howard and Gary Vaught of the Elks Club.

Mr. Howard is the first to also give credit of a good program to his assistant commissioner, Bob Blankenship. The job is obviously too big for one man and Mr. Blankenship contributes his time to add to the betterment of the League.

The support of the community always plays a big part in any program or project and the city of Sikston certainly lives up to any standards set. Money-raising projects, such as the road blocks set up for funds to send the Sr. All- Stars to state play have continuously been successful.

And, last but not least to be recognized in their encouragement of a Sr. League, are the sponsors themselves. Unless someone cares enough to help sponsor a team, all other efforts would be useless.

But sometimes, with all the hard work that the commissioners must put into this type of program, they find time is too short to send thanks to all those that helped them out during the season. Mr. Howard said that it was sometimes difficult to reach the people involved with Sr. baseball to express their appreciation and so, to all those who participated in the success of the League, Mr. Howard and Mr. Blankenship send out a big hearty thank- you.

So, as still another season is brought to a close, thoughts are already projecting ahead to next summer's play in the Sr. Babe Ruth League.

Jaycees claim title

The National Little League City Tournament title goes to the Jaycees for the 1973 season. The scrappy little team fought its way past seven other teams in the league to claim the championship. Security National Bank earned second place with Pizza Inn and Lewis Furniture claiming third and fourth respectively.

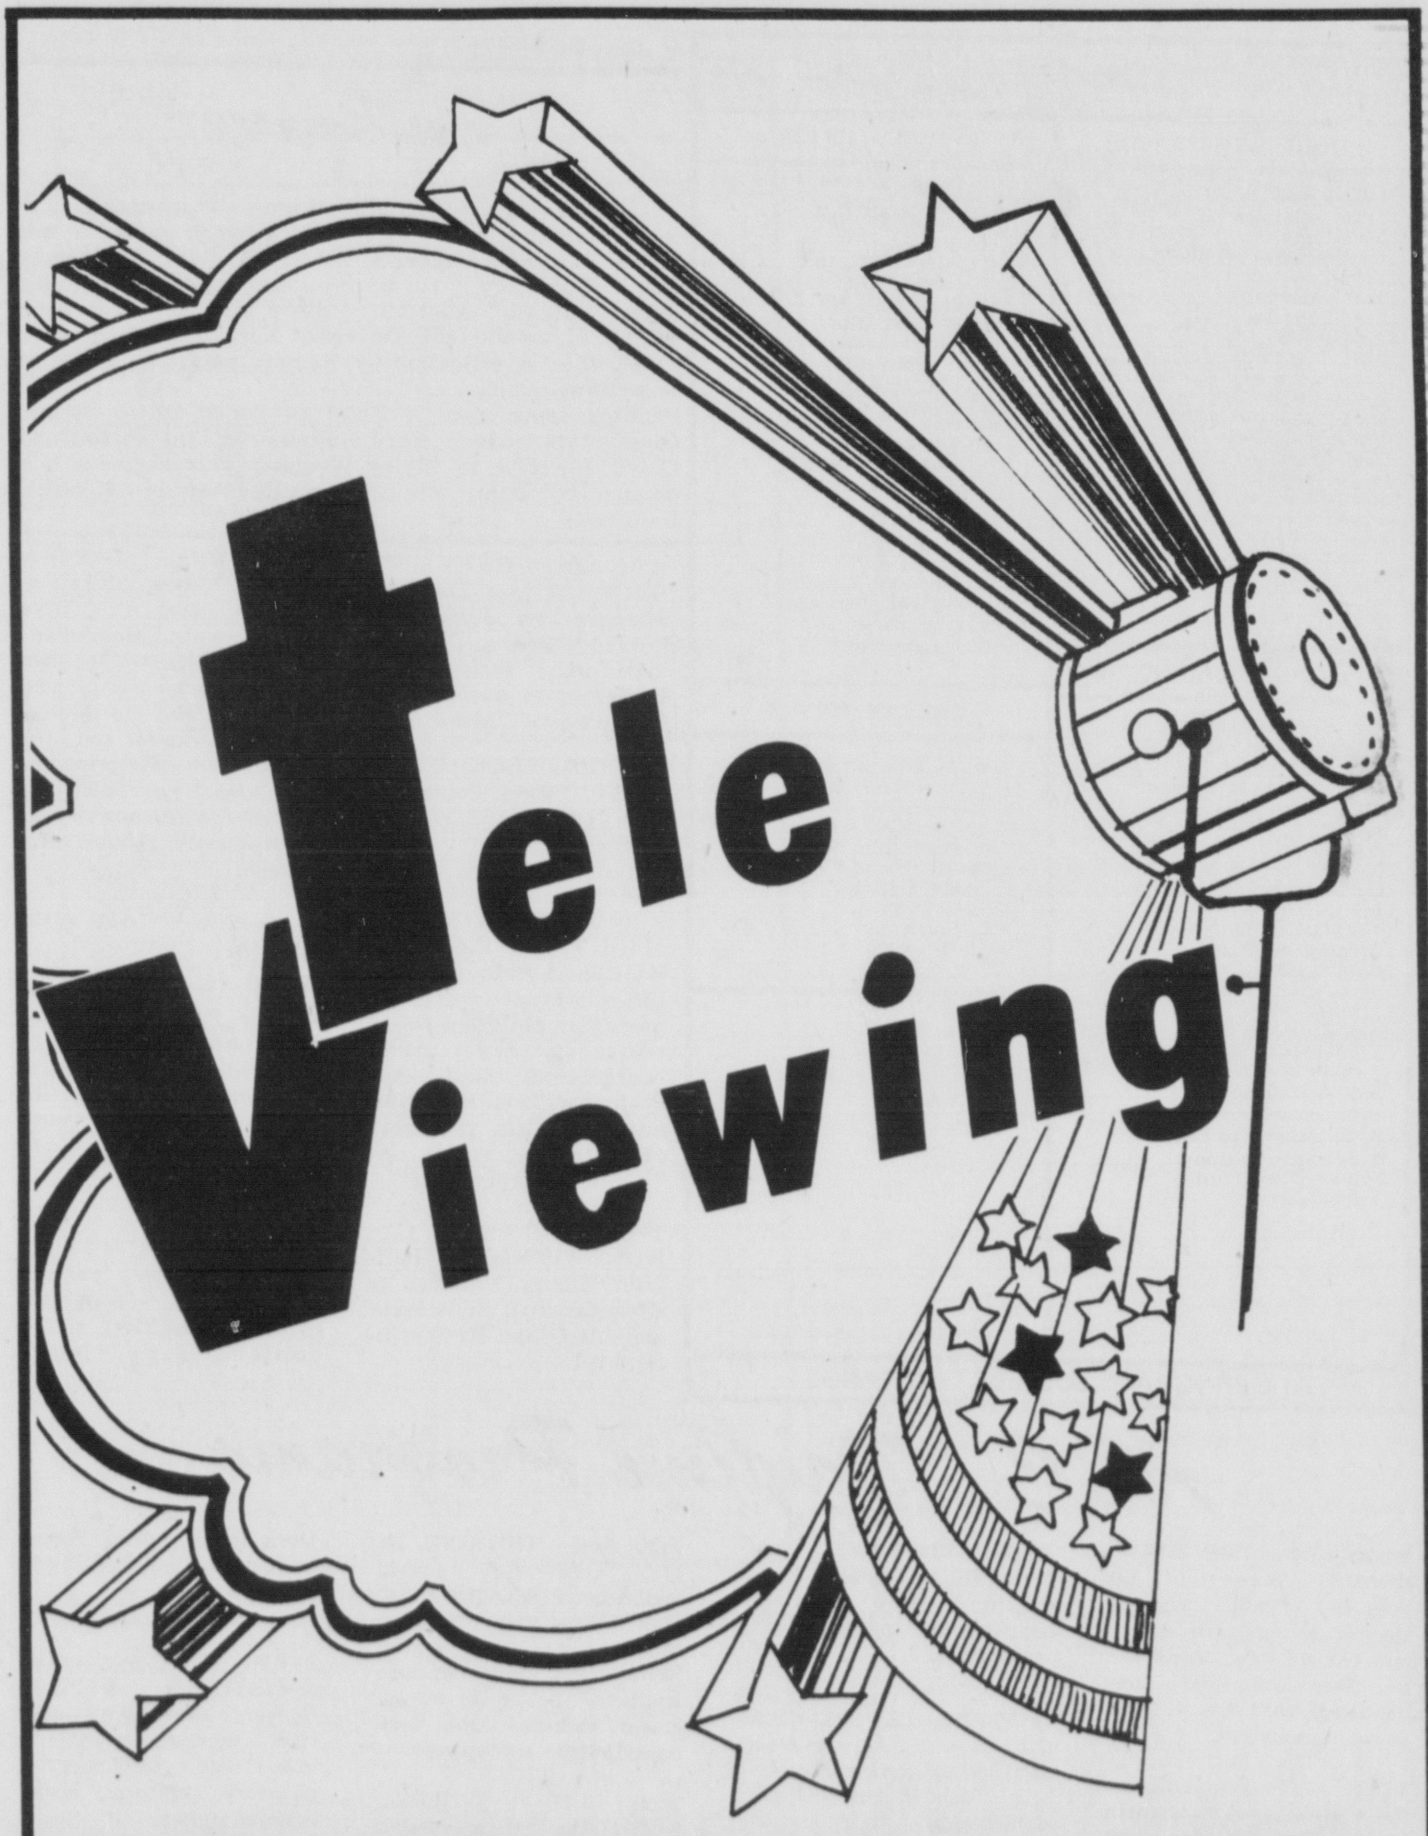

The Jaycees had moved into the semi-final round with two wins to their credit and the team they faced for the title was their arch-rival, Security National Bank. Both teams had been engaged in a struggle throughout the season for a hold on the league's front running position and the win in the tournament, while not breaking the tie in the division, would none-the-less put the winner one up on the loser.

Security National jumped out ahead of the Jaycees in the deciding game of the tourney in the opening inning, 1-0. The Bank appeared to be a little tough for the Jaycees to handle as they pushed another run across in the fourth inning while holding the Jaycees scoreless. But, as is the way with the Jaycees, they proved they were not yet down when in the final inning they rallied to bring across the tie- breaking third run for the big win.

The 3-2 victory in the tourney gave the Jaycees the edge, but the following night their bid for a second title was foiled when Security National picked up the division win.

Despite the one big loss, Coach Daris Burgess commented that he was very proud of his boys. A bit of pressure was on the team because of their first place standing in the league the year before, but they managed to up-hold their name in their fine play throughout the entire season.

In the consolation bracket, Lewis Furniture had to hand over their early 1-0 first inning edge to Pizza Inn in the second inning. Lewis' efforts to score fell short and did not prove to be a serious threat to Pizza Inn. Another two runs in the fifth were added insurance for Pizza Inn's third place win.

Tomorrow

Early Tuesdays- Fridays, NBC Television Network
(In Color, 12:00 Midnight-1:00 A.M., following Mondays-Thursdays presentations
Of 'The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson')

NBC Television Network's new "Tomorrow" program will be tailored to the needs of the 1 a.m. television audience.

The 60- minute colorcasts will be hosted by Tom Snyder, an erudite newsman who, with his guests, will cover the full spectrum of interesting talk.

Many conversations will be between Snyder and a guest. If a topic is worthy of it, more than one guest will be invited and single topics may take up the entire hour.

Some programs may lean toward the lighter side and will be strictly entertaining; others will be more serious and will make news. Snyder and well- known experts will engage in stimulating exchanges sure to generate morning- after conversations among viewers.

Herbert S. Schlosser, Executive Vice President, NBC-TV, commented in announcing the new program: "Tom Snyder is a bright and inquistive interviewer, with a deft sense of humor. He embodies all the qualities we were looking for in a host for this new venture."

"Tomorrow" will originate at NBC's Burbank, Calif., Studios and will be colorcast Tuesdays- through- Fridays (1-2 a.m. NYT), immediately following "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

"Tomorrow" will be produced by Rudy Tellez, formerly producer of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson." (Fall, 1973)

Emergency

Saturdays, NBC Television Network
In Color, 7- 8 p.m.

"Emergency!" is the one- hour dramatic series built around the combined operations of the paramedical rescue service of the Los Angeles County Fire Department and the emergency medical services of the Los Angeles County Department of Hospitals. It will return on the NBC Television Network in the Fall.

Robert Fuller, Julie London, Bobby Troup, Randolph Mantooth and Kevin Tighe star in the series, based on experiences and procedures derived from personnel of both the Los Angeles Fire Department rescue unit and County Hospital emergency wing.

Fuller portrays Dr. Kelly Brackett, chief doctor of the Emergency Division of the fictitious Rampart Hospital in Los Angeles County.

Troup has the role of Dr. Joe Early, a wealthy neurosurgeon in private practice, who frequently volunteers his services.

Mantooth as John Gage and Tighe as Roy DeSoto portray rescue members of the Los Angeles County Fire Department's innovative Paramedic Unit.

Programs consist of a series of vignettes, rather than one single story, and show the relationship between the rescue unit and the hospital emergency wing.

"Emergency!", which premiered in January, 1972, is produced on location in and around Los Angeles and at Universal Studios by Jack Webb's Mark VII Productions, in association with the NBC Television Network.

Robert A. Cinader is the producer.

Unexpected apartment "drop- ins" and the frenetic activities of a fashionable New York department store provide a basis for whirlwind adventures befalling Diana Rigg in her new half- hour comedy series, "Diana," on the NBC Television Network this Fall.

The British stage star portrays Diana Smythe, a fun-loving divorcee seeking a new life in America as a fashion coordinator in the merchandising and advertising departments of Butley's Department Store on Fifth Avenue.

Veteran character actor David Sheiner co- stars as the irascible Norman Brodnik, president of Butley's. Richard B. Shull plays Howard Tolbrook, Diana's cantankerous office- mate.

Diana's adventures out of the office center around her brother's friends, who hold keys to the apartment he has rented for her. A drunk, a writer, and a model are just a few of the characters who unexpectedly welcome Diana to New York on her first days in America.

"Diana" marks the return of Miss Rigg to American television in a weekly series. She is best known for her portrayal of Emma Peel in "The Avengers."

Creator- producer is Leonard B. Stern, whose television successes include NBC- TV's "McMillan & Wife," "Get Smart," "He and She," and "Governor and J. J." Arne Sultan is creative consultant. Gordon Farr and Arnold Kane are story consultants.

The series is a Talent Associates- Norton Simon, Inc. production. It is filmed before an audience at Studio Center in Studio City, Calif.

The Dean Martin Comedy Hour

Fridays, NBC Television Network
(In Color, 9-10 p.m.)

Dean Martin begins his ninth consecutive season as host of his own variety series with the Fall premiere of "The Dean Martin Comedy Hour" on NBC-TV.

Sporting a new title, Dean's show this year will have an emphasis on comedy as it moves to Friday nights. Describing the "new look" for the 1973-74 season, executive producer and director Greg Garrison reveals: "We used to have pretty much a 50-50 split on music and comedy but this year it will be 70-30 in favor of comedy."

Each show will have two stand-up comedians (and sometimes three). Major names will be on stage; so will newcomers to the business. And there will be many new and popular top- of- the- chart record performers joining Dean. Also featured will be such comedy groups as the Ace Trucking Company, the Good Humor Co., and The Committee.

Dean will be in the spotlight as much as before. He will do at least three comedy sketches with each guest comedian, appear in blackout routines and comedy-oriented musical numbers and continue with his solo vocals.

Although not permanent members of the cast, the Ding- a- Ling Sisters and the Golddiggers will appear from time to time throughout the season. (Fall, 1973)
